I'm a film lover in Southampton. I'm a member of Harbour Lights Picturehouse and I go there regularly to see films but also to enjoy the bar area. I have been to Cineworld on many occasion too due to the location being nicer than the Odeon. For me I'd hate to see Harbour Lights become a mainstream cinema or close. I love its individuality and choice of films. The staff are also very good. I prefer it to all of the cinemas in Southampton. However, there is a downside; I do find the screen size and sound inferior to its competitors and therefore it's not my first choice for a mainstream film.
