

From: Daryl Millar

Sent: 25 August 2013 14:50

To: CineworldCityScreen

Subject: Cineworld / Abbeygate Picturehouse Bury St Edmunds

I believe that making Cineworld sell either its multiplex or the Picturehouse in Bury St Edmunds to a competitor is the right idea - as long as the Picturehouse remains an arts cinema to preserve variety of choice.

At the moment, tickets for the Picturehouse are considerably cheaper than Cineworld. Fair competition would seem the best way to preserve this.

I would not mind either site being sold to Odeon as there isn't one nearby. If the Picturehouse is to be sold to someone other than Odeon, I hope it would be sold to an arts specialist such as Curzon.

Kind Regards

Daryl Millar