Dear Sirs

I write to express my total appreciation, and concern for the future, of The Picturehouse Cinema in Bury St Edmunds.

This is a very much loved venue for which the long serving staff and Picturehouse have worked long and hard to fulfil over and above the aspirations of its clients.

As a town, Bury thrives and gains much from its independent traders, such as Picturehouse Cinema before its association with Cineworld. It is an absolute delight that the current cinema retains this independent atmosphere whilst gaining from outside interest in placing entertainment at this venue.

If local cinema goers had originated a complaint about pricing then action should be considered, but it is very disturbing to think that a beautifully balanced situation in Bury St Edmunds should be overturned because of rules which many locally would not think appropriate to apply here.

I and many of my friends trust that a suitable way forward can be found to secure the current much appreciated services of Picturehouse Bury St Edmunds.

Yours faithfully

Isobel Ashton
